The festive season

It can be really challenging to create a Christmas card that feels festive, yet maintains a sense of abstraction and remains true to my style. These cards are selling well again this year though! Please contact for orders.

QUOTE OF THE MONTH

‘I found I could say things with colour and shapes that I couldn’t say any other way.’

Art across generations

It has been such a delight and privilege to exhibit with my Grandmother, the fabulous Northumberland-based painter Jo Hume. Our exhibition at the Playhouse Gallery in Alnwick has been a true celebration of the love of abstract art that we share.

My Grandmother, or Meme as I call her due to her Flemish roots, has been my inspiration since I was a very young girl. It was her who introduced me to paint as a means for expression, and I couldn't have gone on the journey I have without her.

My fondest memories will always be, the trips we have shared into the wild and roaming hills of Yorkshire, and the windswept coastlines of Northumberland - two places we both love and that feed our creativity. I love learning from Jo, and every now and then she learns something from me to!

Ready to connect

Working as an artist it is easy to become isolated in your own way of living and creating. Connecting with others can be daunting, but it can also be very empowering. If you would like to connect, I would love to hear from you. You can find me through any of the below. I hope you have enjoyed this very brief introduction to my world, and I look forward to sharing more with you next month.
